KRUTTSCHNITT ON THE STRIKE

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 10.—A titanic struggle between the railroads throughout the country and hundreds of thousands of their employes, back ed by the American Federation of La bor, was forecast today in connection with the latest demands of workers on western roads for higher pay that would mean a burden of $50,000,000 a year on the carriers. Fearing that the new combination of industrial forces gathered under the leadership of the American Federation of Labor will eventually be as strong a factor to deal with as the Federated Building Trades has been in Chicago, the railroads are determined to combat its every move. The management of the Harriman lines already has thrown down the gauntlet and refused to deal with a committee representing the shop workers on its lines, and other roads are planning to adopt the same policy. On the Union and Southern Pacific and the Illinois Central lines representatives of the federated trades have been told that would be given no recognition. Julius Kruttschnitt, vice president of the Union Pacific and Southern Pa-

It is the same plan of combination that the building trades adopted a long time ago in Chicago. Everybody knows what the result has been, and the railroads of the country will be subjected to the same treatment if this new scheme is carried out. No person or group of persons can at-tempt to construct a building in this without being confronted with the fear that strikes will be called by the building trade unions and heavy financial losses incurred. grave situation will surely exist rallroad managers were compelled to submit to the same methods."

EXPERIMENTS OF FOREST SERVICE

Expert From Washington Talks on the Work of the Silviculture Men -Effect of the Forests on the Weather-Experiment Station in Wasatch Range to Study Reforestation

Professor Raphael Zon, chief of silvice from the Washington office, put in the day at the local district forester's office looking over plans for experimental work. In regard to this ine of work Mr Zon made the following statements as to its scope and importance:

"The people are familiar with the vonderful work done by the agricultural experiment stations in this counry in developing farming, increasing the productivity of the soil, and improving the general conditions of the farmers. If agricultural experiment farmers. stations are need for placing farm-ing on a solid basis, they are still more need in forestry because the forest, unlike the agricultural crop, requires many decades to mature and it is only by continuous observations and experimentation that it is possible to find out what trees to raise on one kind of soil, how to raise them and dispose of them when they become

The forest service has now three forest experiment stations; the oldest s located in Arizona near Flagstaff; another has been created two years ago near Manitou, Colorado, on the Pike forest; and a third one on the Rio Grande forest near Wagon Wheel Gap, Colorado.

' A'fourth experiment station is to be established during this year on the Kootenai National forest, near Libby,

"At these stations the forest vice studies the best methods and seasons for reforestation. The reforestation of large areas involves naturally many thousands of dollars. Since the conditions under which the reforestation often takes place are very trying and there is no precedent by which the worker can be guided. It is thought advisable to try out on small scale and under continuous and constant observation, different methods of reforestation. If these methods successful on a small scale, then one can with greater safety undertake the reforestation on a large scale involving a large expenditure of | basin.

forest service tries to find out what so as to avoid in reforestation work the use of inferior seed walch can produce but an inferior forest

'The effect of forest upon climatic factors, such as temperature of the air wind, soil moisture, humidity of the air, is being studied by means of frequent and thorough instrumental ob servations. In order to settle tuc mooted question of the effect of for ests upon stream flow, the forest ser vice in co-operation with the weather bureau has selected in the Rocky Mountains two small watersheds a most identical in every respect with regard to their soil condition, topog raphy, geological formation and tim conditions The two small streams which drain the two water sheds are being carefully measured by self-recording instruments. The precipitation, the temperature, and climatic factors are carefully observed on the two watersneds. two or three years later it is planned to denude one watershed completely graze it and then compare the effect of the denuded watershed and of a for ested watershed upon the flow of water in the streams.

"This experiment is of most vital importance to the entire Rocky Moun-tain region through which farming depends upon the irrigation supplied by the water that comes from the moun-

"It is planned in a year or two to establish also an experiment station in the Wasatch range to study different methods of reforestation, tryinout new species which may be adapt ed to the semi-arid conditions, study the effect of various watershed coverupon flow of water, and similar

"While the plans have not been definitely made, it is very likely that the experiment station will be located on the Manti forest, where the conditions are typical of the Great Lake

LITTLE ONES SMALLPOX PATIENT REPORTED

County Physician Pidcock and other physicians say there is quite an epi-demic of cholera infantum among children at this time, August, with its hot days and coor nights, the doctors say, is a favorable time for this infantile disease,

It is asserted by some of the physicians that the cholera is often brought on by permitting the children to eat unwholesome substances. They say that nothing but the purest and fresh est milk should be given to very young children.

While serious results have come, Dr. Pidcock says he is afraid there will be deaths of the disease, if the mothers do not exercise some pre-cautions against the development of the allment. He has discovered in some instances that sour milk has been used in feeding young children, the result invariably being cholera infantum. It is said by physicians that August the most critical month in the year in disting children.

BULLDOGS TO BE SHOT

Bulldogs must be muzzled if al wed to run at large in Ogden, according to an order Chief of Police T. E. Browning, was has determined that the vicious dog sulsance must cease in this city.

The order of the chief is due to a of complaints which have come to the police station within the past few days. One prominent business man called at the police sta tion this morning and told of a buildog eating a small pet terrier belong-ing to one of his children. Several children have been bitten by buildogs chickens have been killed and much other trouble caused by the vicious

It is planned by the police depart ment to shoot all buildogs found run ning at large without a muzzle

CAUSE OF ALARM

The people of Staterville became mewhat alarmed yesterday evening over the actions of a man on a wheel who gave his name as Alfred Berg The fellow carried a Winchester rifle on his wheel and when he entere! the farm houses for feed he invariably carried the gun under his arm. He made no threats but the weapon looked dangerous and the people are not certain as to what he intended to do with It

Before he had gone far, the sheriff's office was notified and a deputy dis-patch to Slaterville. The stranger seemed to be surprised that he should be placed in custody but offered no resistence. His wheel is an old one, tled with bailing wire and buckskin strings. The tires are worn to the rims and the remaining rubber on them is held to the rim by a series of wire knots. On the wheel, besides nimself, he carried a commissary, bedding, ri e and other add things needed in the life of a nomad. To the officers this morning, Berg stated that he is on his way to Illinois, his home, and that he expects to make the distance on the old wheel He said he thought he would get him job in Ogden and earn enough money to buy himself a new set of The man claims to have been working on the Truckee reclamation project and that he had saved up much money in the work. He said he had no intention of harming anybody and that when he carried his rifle in-to a house he did so to avoid having it stolen from the wheel while he was in the house. He claimed to be carrying the gun for the purpose of shooting jack rabbits for food
